Proactive release – 2020 Cannabis referendum: Documents relating to the public release of the exposure draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill

Date of issue: Week of 27 April 2020

The following documents have been proactively released in accordance with Cabinet Office Circular CO (18) 4.

In Confidence

Office of the Minister of Justice

Chair, Cabinet Business Committee

2020 Cannabis referendum: Exposure draft Bill and Summary of policies for public release

Proposal

1. The decision on whether or not to legalise and regulate cannabis for personal use is an important one that has implications for New Zealand as a society, and for our communities. The Government is committed to a well-informed cannabis referendum, to ensure a definitive response on the issue.
2. To support voter participation in the referendum at the 2020 General Election, I propose the public release of:
 - 2.1. the exposure draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill (the Bill), and
 - 2.2. the Summary of policies.

Executive summary

3. Legalising the personal use of cannabis would open the way to a new policy approach beyond mere prohibition. However, such an approach would require significant change, and it is important that any mandate derived from the cannabis referendum is clear and unequivocal.
4. In May 2019 Cabinet agreed to the development of a full regulatory model for a legal cannabis regime in New Zealand guided by the primary objectives of minimising the harms associated with cannabis and lowering overall cannabis use over time. [CAB-19-MIN-0198 refers]
5. In November 2019 Cabinet agreed to the public release of an interim version of the Bill and noted that parts were still under development [CAB-19-MIN-0610 refers]. The interim Bill has been publicly available on the referendum.govt.nz website since December 2019.
6. The regulatory model has now been developed and a range of further provisions have been added to the Bill. Some of these refine and complete parts of the regime outlined in the interim version, while others set out substantial new parts of the regime. Most notably, provisions for the approach to a licenced market for the production and sale of cannabis and cannabis products.
7. Drafting is now complete, and the final version of the exposure draft Bill is attached. It sets out a Government controlled and tightly regulated regime that legalises the production, possession and use of cannabis in New Zealand for those aged 20 years and older. It establishes a regulatory framework that aims to reduce the harms from cannabis use to individuals, families, whānau and communities. I propose that this is the version for public release and for the electorate to consider and vote on in the cannabis referendum at the 2020 General Election.

8. A summary of policies has also been prepared to support public understanding of the proposed regime. It sets out the key features of the regulatory model and the rationale for them.
9. I propose that the final Bill and the Summary of policies are publicly released on the referendum website as soon as practicable. This will ensure effective dissemination out to voters and allow sufficient time for them to consider legalising cannabis through the proposed regime before the referendum on 19 September 2020.

Background

10. In December 2018 Cabinet agreed to hold a referendum at the 2020 General Election to determine whether legislative provisions for legalising cannabis should be adopted [CAB-18-MIN0641.02 refers].
11. Legalising the personal use of cannabis would open the way to a new policy approach beyond mere prohibition. However, such an approach would require significant change, and it is important that any mandate derived from the referendum is clear and unequivocal.
12. In May 2019 Cabinet agreed to the development of a full regulatory model for a legal cannabis regime in New Zealand that would address risks and provide appropriate mitigations. Cabinet agreed this would be set out in draft legislation for the electorate to consider and vote on in the referendum.
13. Cabinet also agreed that the regulatory model would be guided by the primary objectives of minimising the harms associated with cannabis and lowering overall cannabis use over time [CAB 19-MIN-0198 refers].
14. In November 2019 Cabinet agreed to the public release of an interim version of the exposure draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill. Cabinet also agreed to the public release of the referendum question: Do you support the proposed Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill?
15. The interim version of the Bill set out a regulated legal cannabis regime with an unlicensed sphere and a licensed sphere, and included foundation provisions for:
 - 15.1. the purpose of the Bill
 - 15.2. the establishment of the regulator and its functions
 - 15.3. controls on cannabis for personal use
 - 15.4. the establishment of the licenced regime, and
 - 15.5. controls on some licensed activities.

16. Cabinet noted that parts of the Bill were still being developed and would be completed by early 2020 [CAB-19-MIN-0610 refers].
17. For the referendum to be effective, the public need to know what will happen afterwards. A 'No' vote would mean a continuation of the status quo. In the event of a 'Yes' vote, the parties making up the Government have committed to following through with legislation that is closely modelled on the Bill.
18. I reiterate my support for an approach in the lead up to the referendum that is focused on encouraging public awareness and discussion. This will ensure the public can participate meaningfully in the referendum process and that the outcome is perceived as legitimate.
19. In November 2019 Cabinet also agreed that the Bill and public information about the cannabis referendum would be made available through a stand-alone website [CAB-19-MIN-0624 refers]. On 3 December the referendum.govt.nz website was launched, and the interim version of the Bill was released. It has been available for public consideration since that time.

Engagement with interested stakeholders and experts

20. In developing the proposed legal cannabis regime officials have engaged with a range of interested stakeholders and experts on cannabis and its effects on individuals, families, whānau and communities.
21. Further to engagement with communities across the country in late 2019, officials have held a series of in-depth discussions with experts in public health, pharmacology, psychology, criminology, and law. They received feedback on the interim Bill, advice on relevant research and experience within these fields, and discussed implications for the proposed regime.
22. Insights from these engagements have informed further policy development across the proposed regime.

The regulatory regime and the Bill

The development of the regulatory regime is complete...

23. The regulatory model for a legal cannabis regime has now been developed and a range of further provisions have been added to the Bill. Some of these refine and complete parts of the regime outlined in the interim version of the Bill, while others set out substantial new parts of the regime.
24. Most notably, provisions in Part 4 set out the approach to a licensed market for the production and sale of cannabis and cannabis products. The regulatory model balances the strong public health objectives of harm reduction and lowering use while supporting the development of a legal market that is sufficiently competitive to draw cannabis consumers away from the illicit market. A cap on the quantity of cannabis supplied into the market, social equity principles embedded within the framework for allocating the market, and the regulator playing a central decision-making role will ensure a tightly-controlled but viable licensed market.

25. Appendix 1 lists what was provided for in the interim version of the Bill (December 2019) and what has been added in the final version (April 2020).

...and reflected in a final version of the Bill

26. Drafting is now complete, and the final version of the exposure draft Bill is included as Attachment 1. I propose that this is the version for public release and for the electorate to consider and vote on in the cannabis referendum at the 2020 General Election.
27. The Bill sets out a Government controlled and tightly regulated legal regime. It seeks to raise public awareness of the health risks associated with cannabis use, limit exposure to cannabis, and provide access to health and social services designed to address issues associated with cannabis use.
28. The Bill legalises the production, possession and use of cannabis in New Zealand for those aged 20 years and older and establishes a regulatory framework that aims to reduce the harms from cannabis use to individuals, families, whānau, and communities.
29. It provides for people to grow cannabis for their own use, within prescribed parameters, and for the development of a marketplace for the licensed supply of cannabis. Controls on commercial activities are intended to provide access to a legal and quality-controlled source of cannabis for people who choose to use it.
30. An accompanying document – Summary of policies – has also been prepared to support public understanding of the proposed regime and is included as Attachment 2. It summarises policy decisions made by the Government since May 2019, setting out the key features of the regulatory model and the rationale for them.
31. Additional explanatory materials are also in development and will be made available to the public. This includes a technical guide to the Bill.
32. I propose that the Bill and the Summary of policies are publicly released on the referendum website as soon as practicable.

Process between now and the referendum

Cabinet has authorised the initiation of the cannabis referendum

33. The Referendums Framework Act 2019 sets out the rules for referendums held alongside the 2020 General Election.
34. In March 2020, in accordance with these rules, the Cabinet Legislation Committee authorised the submission of the Cannabis Referendum Order 2020 to the Executive Council. The Order declares the cannabis referendum to be a referendum for the purposes of the Act and thereby legally initiates the cannabis referendum [CAB-20-MIN-0116 refers].

Early release will ensure voters are well-informed in time for the referendum

35. Releasing the Bill and the Summary as early as practicable will ensure effective dissemination out to voters via the referendum.govt.nz website, the Electoral Commission, and other established networks for providing public information.
36. The proposed approach aligns with the Electoral Commission's timeline for producing and sending out public information for the 2020 General Election and referendums.
37. This will allow sufficient time for voters to consider legalising cannabis through the regulatory regime set out in the Bill before the referendum on 19 September 2020.

Officials will continue to work through details

38. Officials will continue to refine details of the proposed cannabis regime and work through issues related to the interface between the regime and existing organisations, systems and process. Alignment with risk areas such as drugged driving and health and safety at work are a priority.
39. The Bill, while expansive, does not address certain policy issues that have been deferred until after the referendum. For example, the interaction with current cannabis laws under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1975 (MODA), and the interface between the recreational cannabis, medicinal cannabis, and hemp regimes. How these issues are resolved will have important consequences for all three regimes if cannabis is legalised.
40. The Ministry of Justice will continue to work with partners, including the Ministry of Health, New Zealand Police, New Zealand Customs, and the Ministry for Primary Industries, on these issues.

Consultation

41. The following government agencies have been consulted on this paper: Ministry of Health, New Zealand Police, Oranga Tamariki, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, New Zealand Customs, Ministry of Transport, Inland Revenue Department, Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment, Ministry of Primary Industries, Crown Law, State Services Commission, the Treasury and the Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet

International legal issues and foreign policy implications

42. As noted by Cabinet in December 2018, as a party to the United Nations Drug Conventions, New Zealand is currently bound to prohibit the production, manufacture, export, import, distribution of, trade in and use of cannabis except when carried out for medicinal or scientific purposes [CAB-18-MIN-0641.02 refers].

9(2)(h)

44.

Financial implications

- 45. The proposal in this paper forms part of the work programme previously agreed to by Cabinet and the public release of the Bill and the Summary of policies does not constitute a request for additional funding.
- 46. Further advice on financial implications would need to be provided at the point a future government decides to introduce the Bill. 9(2)(f)(iv)

Legislative implications

- 47. The proposal in this paper does not have any immediate legislative implications.
- 48. The cannabis referendum question asks voters whether or not they support the legislative provisions for the legalisation of cannabis set out in the exposure draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill. As the introduction of the Bill is dependent on the outcome of the referendum, any legislative implications will not arise until following the 2020 General Election.

Impact analysis

49. This paper proposes to release the exposure draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill, alongside the Summary of policies, in order to support voter information and participation in the referendum. While these documents outline regulatory options, no decisions will be made until the result of the referendum is known. If Cabinet decides to take action following the result of the referendum, a Regulatory Impact Assessment and a Cost Recovery Impact Statement must be prepared to support the Cabinet decision.

Human Rights

50. Crown Law has provided preliminary observations on the consistency of the Bill with the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 (NZBORA).

51. 9(2)(h)

52.

53.

54.

55. If the Bill is to be introduced, the Attorney-General (advised by Crown Law) will undertake a more formal determination of its consistency with NZBORA.

Gender Implications

56. In New Zealand, surveys indicate that women are much less likely to use cannabis and are less likely to report harm from cannabis use. Some research suggests that women may experience different impacts from cannabis use than men.

57. However, further research is required to fully understand the impacts of cannabis use on women. The regime, as proposed, facilitates the collection of data and supports research such as this. Officials will work with the Ministry of Health and Ministry for Women to ensure that the proposed regulatory model facilitates research to better address the needs of different groups, including women.

Disability Perspective

58. Should the proposed regime be implemented, officials will consider how the wider social service sector can support people with disabilities who want to access cannabis.

Publicity

59. I will make public announcements about the referendum and the release of the Bill in due course.
60. Cabinet should note that the regulations to enable the Medicinal Cannabis Scheme come into force on 1 April 2020. New Zealanders have been confused about the differences between the two regimes. The Ministry of Justice is working closely with the Ministry of Health to ensure that public information provides clarity on the differences.

Proactive Release

61. I propose to proactively release this Cabinet paper alongside the Bill and the Summary of policies on the referendum website as part of the public information for the cannabis referendum.

Draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill

Summary of policies

This document sets out the policies that underpin the proposed model for the regulation of cannabis. An overall summary of the Bill's restrictions, objectives and controls are outlined below, followed by details of the proposed regulatory model as outlined in the draft Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill.

The following terms have been abbreviated for ease of reading:

- 'cannabis' refers to recreational cannabis and cannabis products
- 'the Authority' refers to the Cannabis Regulatory Authority, and
- 'THC' refers to tetrahydrocannabinol, the primary psychoactive compound in cannabis.

The proposed regime restricts access cannabis

The Bill would allow people to possess and consume cannabis in limited circumstances.

A person aged 20 or over would be able to:

- buy up to 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent) per day only from licensed outlets
- enter licensed premises where cannabis is sold or consumed
- consume cannabis on private property or at a licensed premise
- grow up to two plants, with a maximum of four plants per household
- share up to 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent) with another person aged 20 or over.

An objective of the Bill is to reduce harm to people and communities

The Bill aims to reduce cannabis-related harm to individuals, families/whānau and communities by:

- raising awareness of the risks associated with cannabis use
- restricting young people's access to cannabis
- limiting the public visibility of cannabis
- requiring quality and potency standards for cannabis and cannabis products
- requiring health warnings on packaging and at the time of purchase
- improving access to health and social services, and other kinds of support for families/whānau
- making sure the response to any breach of the law is proportionate
- disempowering gangs and eliminating the illegal supply of cannabis.

The Bill aims to encourage compliance and focuses on reducing overall harm.

The proposed regime will control the production and supply of cannabis

The Bill aims to control how cannabis is produced and supplied by:

- limiting the total amount of licensed cannabis for sale

- controlling the potency and contents of licensed cannabis and cannabis products
- making sure pricing balances the need to reduce harm with the need to draw people away from the illegal market
- setting up a licensing system under which all cannabis-related businesses must hold a licence
- regulating location and trading hours for premises where cannabis is consumed, in consultation with local communities
- banning people from importing cannabis and allowing only licensed businesses to import cannabis seeds
- separating businesses that are licensed to grow cannabis and produce cannabis products from businesses that are licensed to operate premises where cannabis can be sold and consumed.

1 Establishing the framework for legalisation and regulation

Regulatory objectives

Early decisions made by Cabinet included the following policy objectives aimed at:

- addressing the wellbeing of New Zealanders and reducing harms - the model should minimise harms associated with cannabis, such as health-related harm, social harms and harm to young people
- lowering the overall use of cannabis over time through education and addiction services, with a focus on lowering the use amongst young people by increasing the age of first use for those disposed to using it, and
- ensuring that revenue raised through the regulation of cannabis contributes to relevant health-related measures.

Secondary policy objectives were also agreed by Cabinet as:

- disempowering gangs and the illegal trade in cannabis
- lowering the number of New Zealanders (especially Māori) whose future opportunities are negatively affected by cannabis use charges
- ensuring product safety and control of THC levels via legislation and regulation
- ensuring consistency with the rule of law – the model should uphold New Zealand’s constitution. It should also minimise opportunities for the illicit market and be clear and easy to follow
- tailored and workable for New Zealand – the model should recognise and reflect the cultural practices and the values of New Zealand society, so that it can be accepted by New Zealanders, and
- being fiscally sustainable – the model should seek to fund mechanisms that directly address cannabis-related harms, while also aiming to lower use over time.

Key regulatory settings

Cabinet agreed that the key settings for a regulatory model should include:

- a minimum age of 20 years to use and purchase cannabis

- controls on the potency of cannabis and cannabis products available
- limits on where cannabis may be consumed – only in private homes and specifically licensed premises
- sale of cannabis through physical stores only (not online or by remote sale)
- health and harm minimisation messaging in the marketing and retailing of cannabis
- limits on the social sharing of small amounts of cannabis between those over the legal age, while reinforcing penalties for individuals who share with those under 20 years
- controls over seed and/or plant purchase to permit private cultivation of cannabis at home, including the requirement to keep children and underage individuals safe
- regulated market controls that permit cannabis-infused products to be made at home, but prohibit extraction of resins and other concentrates at home
- ensures through a state licensing regime that all stages of the supply chain are licensed and controlled
- controls through a state licensing regime all manufacture of cannabis products, including resins and other concentrates
- controls through a state licensing regime all commercial manufacture of cannabis-infused products, such as cannabis edibles, and
- restrictions on marketing activities, including a ban on all advertising of cannabis products.

2 Overview

The proposed regulatory framework aims to reduce the harms from cannabis use to individuals, families, whānau and communities.

Purpose statement for the proposed regime

The purpose statement establishes the broad objectives of the regulatory regime, consistent with those agreed by Cabinet.

This has been identified as authorising, regulating and controlling the cultivation, manufacture, use and sale of cannabis in New Zealand, with the intent of reducing harms from cannabis use to individuals, families, whānau and communities by -

- a) exercising controls over the whole cannabis supply chain and availability of cannabis in New Zealand and deterring the illegal supply of cannabis; and
- b) raising public awareness of the health risks associated with cannabis use, including the risks posed by second-hand cannabis emissions, particularly to children and young people; and
- c) protecting the health and wellbeing of New Zealanders, particularly young people, through restricting their access to cannabis and prohibiting inducements to use cannabis; and
- d) improving access to health and social services, and other whānau supports, for those who require assistance to address issues associated with cannabis use; and

- e) providing access to a legal and quality-controlled supply of cannabis for adults who choose to use cannabis; and
- f) limiting the public visibility of, and exposure to, cannabis use in New Zealand; and
- g) placing controls on the potency and content of licensed cannabis; and
- h) providing for the limited growing of cannabis for personal use, within a regulated environment; and
- i) ensuring that responses to contraventions of the proposed regime are proportionate, encourage compliance, and incorporate a focus on reducing overall harms; and
- j) ensuring that all stages of the supply chain, including the management of associated waste products, are licensed and controlled.

Definition of cannabis

A definition of cannabis has been developed, which distinguishes the cannabis regime from the medicinal cannabis and hemp schemes.

Cannabis means any plant of the genus Cannabis, whether growing or not, and includes:

- any part of a plant of that kind, (including the phytocannabinoids produced by, or found in, the plant) regardless of whether that part has been processed or not; and
- any substance or mixture of substances that contains, or has on it, any part of that plant; and
- any substance that is identical to any phytocannabinoid produced by, or found in, a plant of that kind, regardless of how the substance was obtained; and
- any derivative of that kind; and
- a cannabis product being any product manufactured from, or containing, cannabis.

The definition excludes:

- medicinal cannabis, which is regulated under the Misuse of Drugs (Medicinal Cannabis) Regulations 2019; and
- hemp, which is regulated under the Misuse of Drugs (Industrial Hemp) Regulations 2006.

Te Tiriti o Waitangi

Consideration has been given to provisions that recognise and respect the Crown's responsibility to give effect to Te Tiriti o Waitangi. These include requirements to ensure iwi and Māori representation in key elements of the regulatory regime (e.g. on the membership of the Advisory Committee and as part of the independent body that must be appointed to review the operation of the legislation following five years of operation).

Recognition of the interests of Māori is provided for in other ways, including decisions on the allocation of the national annual cannabis cultivation cap.

Commencement

Should legislation be introduced into Parliament and passed, it will come into force following Royal assent.

It would be possible to introduce legislation with a delayed commencement date, allowing time for a licensed supply of cannabis to be established. However, there are risks to this approach as people may act in breach of existing prohibitive laws, while waiting for the new legislation to come into force.

3 Key regulatory roles and functions

Cannabis Regulatory Authority

The proposed approach provides for an oversight regulatory body, the Cannabis Regulatory Authority (this is a holding name). The Authority would be responsible for giving effect to the legislation and associated regulations. It would be required to do this in a manner that:

- promotes the wellbeing of New Zealanders
- reduces the multiple harms associated with cannabis use, and
- reduces the overall use of cannabis over time.

The proposed functions of the Authority would be to cooperate with any other law enforcement, regulatory or statutory agency to (without limitation):

- a) establish and monitor a cannabis cultivation cap; and
- b) license and authorise controlled activities in the cannabis supply chain; and
- c) set the criteria and conditions for licences and authorisations for controlled activities; and
- d) set limits on the allowable levels of THC and other substances in cannabis and cannabis products; and
- e) monitor and enforce compliance with licence and authorisation conditions and criteria, including requirements for cannabis products to meet production, testing and labelling standards, quality controls, and restrictions on the operations of retailers and consumption premises; and
- f) implement decisions made in appeals from decisions of the Authority and the appeals authority; and
- g) administer and collect excise taxes, levies and fees charged as part of the cannabis regulatory regime; and
- h) monitor and enforce compliance with legislation and regulations permitting the private home-growing of cannabis and provisions relating to the possession and use of cannabis; and
- i) develop good practice guidelines for individuals who choose to grow cannabis at home in accordance with legislative and regulatory provisions; and
- j) conduct (directly or indirectly) public education campaigns to -

- i. raise public awareness of the harms associated with cannabis use, including harms presented to children and young people by second-hand cannabis emissions and promote responsible use and help-seeking behaviours; and
 - ii. raise public awareness of the law under legislation governing cannabis use in New Zealand, including what activities the law permits, restricts, and prohibits, and the effects of not complying with it; and
- k) collect and analyse data and reporting on the dynamics of the supply and demand for, and use of, cannabis in New Zealand, to ensure the regulatory regime is meeting its objectives; and
 - l) promote and support research focused on understanding and reporting on cannabis use in New Zealand and informing evidence-based approaches to preventative and harm reduction activities; and
 - m) regulate cannabis production and marketing; and
 - n) regulate cannabis accessories and certain substances added to cannabis; and
 - o) facilitate a whole of government approach to addressing non compliance that is health-based and focused on harm reduction, in particular in relation to young people.

The intent is that most of these functions be undertaken by the Authority. However, some functions (e.g. administration of excise taxes and some enforcement activities) could be undertaken by existing State sector bodies with appropriate expertise.

Preparation of a national plan

The regime provides for the Authority to prepare and publish a national plan, setting out how it intends to give effect to the main objectives and the purposes of the legislation. The national plan must include:

- a public health, drug education and treatment services strategy, designed to reduce the harm caused by cannabis use; and
- an approach for determining the national annual cultivation cap.

The first national plan would be developed soon after the Authority was established, with a second plan to follow a statutory review of the Act (five years after the introduction of the licensed regime), and subsequent plans to be developed at five-yearly intervals.

The Authority would be required to report annually to the responsible Minister on how it has implemented the national plan and the outcomes achieved. This report would be published and available to the public.

Public health, drug education and treatment services strategy

As noted above, the national plan would be required to include a public health, drug education and treatment services strategy, referred to as the 'harm reduction strategy'.

The intention is that the harm reduction strategy includes:

- public health promotion initiatives designed to prevent and reduce harms from cannabis consumption
- the development and delivery of drug education programmes focused on addressing harmful cannabis use
- engagement with commissioning agencies familiar with treatment services for those experiencing harm from cannabis and their families and whānau
- the evaluation approach and timeframes for reporting on the outcomes of drug education and treatment services and programmes, and
- independent scientific research on matters associated with cannabis use, including the impacts on different cultural groups.

The strategy would be required to reflect and address regional variances in service delivery need and approach, and the Authority would be required to consult appropriately to reflect regional and cultural interests and seek the input of individuals and agencies with relevant expertise.

The strategy would be fully costed and these costs would be met through a levy to be paid by licensed cannabis producers (see Duties, levies and fees section of this document).

The proposed requirement to develop a national plan and a harm reduction strategy is intended to promote transparency and accountability within the Authority, and to ensure that a wide range of expertise is available to the Authority and informs a planned approach.

Cannabis Advisory Committee

A Cannabis Advisory Committee, consisting of individuals with expertise in a range of relevant areas including iwi and Māori representation with appropriate expertise, and relevant expertise from the health, justice and social sectors would be established as a part of the regime.

The functions of the Advisory Committee have been identified as providing advice to the Authority on:

- the development of the national plan, including the harm reduction strategy
- the annual report on the national plan
- reviewing and setting of THC potency limits on cannabis products
- setting and a locating the annual cultivation cap on licensed cannabis production
- developing the harm reduction criteria used across the licensing regime, and
- any other matters on which the Authority seeks advice.

The responsible Minister could also seek advice from the Advisory Committee on specific issues.

Cannabis Appeals Authority

The regime would also include a three-person appeals body (including one experienced lawyer) to be appointed by the responsible Minister. The Appeals Authority would be responsible for hearing appeals against the licensing/authorisation decisions of the regulator.

A small-scale appeals body allows for relatively quick and cost-effective appeals decision-making. Subsequent rights of appeal against a determination or direction of the appeals body on a question of law could be made to the High Court.

4 Proposed restrictions on cannabis use

Age limit

The purchase and possession of cannabis would be limited to people aged 20 years or older.

Purchase limit of 14 grams per day

The amount of cannabis that an individual could purchase per day would be restricted to 14 grams of dried cannabis or its equivalent. This is consistent with the proposed limit for public possession.

The purchase limit of 14 grams per day for dried cannabis (or its equivalent) is sufficient to allow a daily and/or dependent user to purchase enough dried cannabis for a week in a single transaction. This policy is intended to ensure equitable access to a licensed supply of cannabis, particularly for people who live in geographically isolated regions and those with mobility issues.

The inclusion of an 'or equivalent' measure allows for the identification of prescribed purchase limits for other cannabis products such as edibles and concentrates.

Possession limit of 14 grams per day

Public possession of cannabis is limited to 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent) consistent with the proposed purchase limit.

A public possession limit provides a means of lowering the risk of the non-licensed supply or sale of cannabis and reinforcing restrictions around social sharing.

Social sharing

An individual would be permitted to socially share (and receive) up to 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent) with a person aged 20 years or older.

'Sharing' excludes selling or gifting for promotional purposes, or for any other material benefit. This aligns to the proposed purchase and public possession limit, making the law easier to comply with and enforce.

Equivalent amounts of 14 grams of dried cannabis in non-dried form

Equivalences would be established across cannabis classes based on conversions of 14 grams of dried cannabis (e.g. 14 grams of dried cannabis is equivalent to 70 grams of fresh cannabis, or 210 grams of cannabis edibles).

This information will assist consumers to understand the purchase, public possession and social sharing limits.

Places of consumption

The consumption of cannabis would be restricted to private residences or licensed consumption premises. It prohibits the consumption of cannabis in a public place or in a vehicle that is in a public place. This approach helps to reduce the public visibility of cannabis consumption.

Exposing a person aged 19 years or younger to cannabis emissions (smoke or vape) would be prohibited.

Consumption premises are intended to provide a safe place for people to consume cannabis, particularly if they reside with children and young people, or are otherwise not permitted to consume cannabis in their place of residence.

Importing and exporting cannabis

The regime prohibits people from importing or exporting cannabis. The only exception is where a person holds a cannabis production licence with a nursery authorisation, which enables them to import cannabis seed.

5. Growing cannabis for personal use

A person aged 20 years or older would be permitted to grow cannabis for personal use.

Limiting the number of plants grown

An individual aged 20 years or older would be permitted to grow two plants without a licence, or four plants per household of two or more adults aged 20 years or older.

This position seeks to avoid situations involving one person in a multiple occupancy dwelling growing a large number of plants.

Plant limits have been developed on the basis of information about the current levels of consumption by regular cannabis consumers and data on the yield of cannabis plants in New Zealand.

Restrictions on location of plants

Cannabis plants may only be grown for personal use without a licence if the plant is grown in an area out of public sight or not publicly accessible.

Home production of cannabis-infused products

The proposed regime allows for the production of cannabis-infused products without a licence. This means that people will be able to produce cannabis-infused products (e.g. cannabis edibles) at home as long as they do not use dangerous production methods.

Home production of concentrates

The proposed regime prohibits the use of dangerous methods to produce concentrates without a licence.

This provision draws a bright line around production methods that can cause immediate harm (e.g. using dangerous solvents). Dangerous production methods are defined as the use of organic solvents such as butane or propane which will be specified in regulations.

6. Enforcement of general provisions

Policy decisions provide for a range of offences and penalties to be applied to breaches of the general provisions – these include the use of fees, fines and, in the most serious cases, terms of imprisonment.

Infringement offences:
Exceeding the per person limit on growing cannabis (more than two plants)	A fee of $500 or a fine of up to $1,000
Exceeding the per household limit on growing cannabis (more than four plants)	A fee of $500 or a fine of up to $1,000
Growing more than four plants on a property (when only four plants are permitted)	A fee of $500 or a fine of up to $1,000
Growing cannabis in a public place	A fee of $500 or a fine of up to $1,000
Supply of cannabis sent through mail-order or courier	A fee of $500 or a fine of up to $1,000
Import or export of cannabis	A fee of $200 or a fine of up to $500
Growing cannabis in a place that is both publicly visible and publicly accessible	A compliance notice, followed by a fee of $200 or a fine of up to $500
Purchasing more than 14 grams of cannabis in a day	A fee of $200 or a fine of up to $500
Possession of more than 14 grams of cannabis in public	A fee of $200 or a fine of up to $500
Use of cannabis in public	A fee of $200 or a fine of up to $500

Infringement offence for underage possession

The policy includes an infringement offence of 'possession of cannabis by a person aged 19 years or under'.

The proposed penalty is an infringement fee of $100 and a fine of up to $200, with the option of a health-based compliance condition that may be carried out as an alternative to paying the fee or fine.

An infringement offence is standard for straightforward low-level offending. It entails minimal contact with the justice system and cannot lead to a criminal conviction. This response offers an alternative to paying a fee or fine, and seeks to address the offending behaviour and prevent reoccurrence.

Infringement offence for exposing a person aged 19 years or younger to cannabis emissions

It would also be an offence to expose a person aged 19 years or younger to the emissions of smoking or vaping.

The proposed penalty is a fee of $500 or a fine of up to $1,000, with the option of a compliance condition requiring engagement with an appropriate support service (e.g. parenting or family/whānau support services and health-based services). This offers an alternative to paying a fee or fine, and seeks to address the offending behaviour and prevent reoccurrence.

Offences for breaches:
Sale or offer to sell cannabis to a person aged 19 years or younger	In the case of an individual: up to 4 years' imprisonment In the case of a body corporate: a fine of up to $150,000
Unauthorised sale or offer to sell cannabis	In the case of an individual: up to 2 years' imprisonment In the case of a body corporate: a fine of up to $100,000
Supply or offer to supply cannabis to a person aged 19 years or younger	Fine of up to $5,000
Unauthorised supply of more than 14 grams of cannabis to a person aged 20 years or older	Fine of up to $3,000
Knowing import or export of cannabis	In the case of an individual: up to 2 years' imprisonment or a fine of up to $10,000 In the case of a body corporate: a fine of up to $50,000
The dangerous production of concentrates without a licence with an exception for cannabis-infused products	In the case of an individual: up to 2 years' imprisonment or a fine of up to $10,000 In the case of a body corporate: $50,000
Knowingly growing 10 or more cannabis plants	In the case of an individual: up to 3 months' imprisonment or a fine of up to $2,000

7 Licences and authorisation of activities

Overarching purpose statement for the proposed licensing regime

An overarching purpose statement is proposed to guide all decisions related to licensed and otherwise authorised activities:

...to contribute to harm reduction, including the harm caused by illicit supply by establishing a regime to control the supply of cannabis in New Zealand by promoting, as far as possible, equitable access to a stable supply of licensed cannabis and cannabis products available for purchase in New Zealand.

Establishing a licensing system via legislation

The regime provides for a licensing system for the classes of licence available and the controlled activities that are permitted under each class of licence. It includes the requirements for each class of licence, and the processes for licence applications, renewal, appeals, associated fees and charges.

Controlled activities within the regulatory regime

The licensing system is intended to regulate all parts of a commercial licensed cannabis market, from seeds and growing stock through to the sale to end-users. The proposed model identifies 11 controlled activities that are prohibited unless undertaken by those with the appropriate licence or authorisation.

These 11 controlled activities fall under one of three licence types - a production licence, a testing licence or a distribution licence.

Controlled activities that fall within a production licence are:

- a nursery activity – importing seed, growing, selling, supplying growing stock to licence holders;
- a micro-cultivation activity – small-scale cannabis cultivation;
- a cultivation activity – large-scale cannabis cultivation;
- a processing activity – processing, packaging and labelling of cannabis;
- a wholesaling and distribution activity;
- a nursery retail activity – selling cannabis seeds and growing stock to the public;
- a research activity – research and development of cannabis; and
- a destruction activity – safe and secure destruction of cannabis.

Controlled activities that fall within a distribution licence are:

- a retail activity; and
- a consumption premises activity.

Controlling the market through separation of activities

The proposed regime requires the mandatory separation of the retail licensed section of the market (distribution licences) from the wholesale cultivation and processing section of the market (production licences). The effect is that no individual or commercial entity can hold a production licence together with a distribution licence.

An individual or commercial entity may hold a production licence with a cultivation activity authorisation or a micro-cultivation authorisation but cannot hold both.

A testing licence must be held by an authorised analytical testing laboratory and must be an independent third party to any other licensed entity within the licensing system.

Controlling the market size through a cannabis cultivation cap

It is proposed that a limit is placed on the total amount of cannabis that may be grown under licence, which can then be supplied for sale in the licensed market. This is achieved through the application of a cannabis cultivation cap (the cap). The Authority would be required to consult with the Cannabis Advisory Committee for input when setting the cap.

The policy approach requires the Authority to administer the cap in line with the objectives of harm reduction and lowering use. The Authority can set and amend the level of the cap by way of regulations and notice in the Gazette.

Allocating the cannabis cultivation cap

It is proposed that the cap would be allocated by the Authority to production licence holders with either a cultivation activity authorisation or a micro-cultivation activity authorisation. The Authority would set an annual cap and determine the share of the cap to be allocated to cultivation activity and to micro-cultivation activity.

Production licence holders with a cultivation activity authorisation or a micro-cultivation activity authorisation would have an allocation of the cap that they are permitted to sell or supply to licensed entities with a processing activity authorisation.

Cultivation activity authorisations are designed for large-scale growers; micro-cultivation activity authorisations are designed for small-scale growers.

Production licences with micro-cultivation activity authorisations are intended to provide for the benefits of commercial cannabis production to be accessed by small-scale operators and across multiple regions. Micro-cultivators will be required to meet and comply with the same controls as larger operators.

Competition and the cannabis cultivation cap

It is recommended that no production licence holder with a cultivation activity authorisation may have an allocation of more than 20 percent of the cultivation cap. This is to ensure a competitive market with no single entity dominating a part of the cannabis supply chain.

Where there is greater demand for the cultivation share of the cap than available, the Authority would consider applications in line with principles of social equity.

This means that the Authority would consider the degree to which the application will achieve:

- the representation of, or partnership with, those disproportionately impacted and harmed by prohibition, including Māori and people from economically deprived areas
- the generation of social benefit and building of community partnerships by engagement with individuals, whānau, and communities in the design and delivery of their activities, and
- the promotion of employment opportunities and career pathways in the cannabis industry for Māori and those from economically deprived areas.

The Authority may also have regard to any other factor that supports the Authority in performing its functions in accordance with its objectives and the purposes of the regulatory model.

Declaration of cannabis seed

As part of the process to establish the licensed market, it is proposed that entities with nursery, cultivation, micro-cultivation and research authorisations be permitted to use seeds already in their possession after declaring them through a declaration process. Entities with the required authorisation will only be eligible for a single declaration, which can occur after a licence is obtained.

The seeds would be declared to the Authority who will have power to accept, decline or alter the number of seeds used by licence holders. The declaration process will be allowed for a transitional period to help establish the supply chain.

Licensing requirements

The proposed regime includes a number of requirements that individuals and entities must meet in order to be issued a licence:

- all licence holders must have an approved 'responsible person' at all times whose role is to control the activities for which the licence is held, and to communicate with the Authority on behalf of the entity
- a cannabis production licence holder or a cannabis testing licence holder must have, at all times, one individual approved as a 'key person' for each authorised activity at each location operated under the licence, and
- a cannabis distribution licence holder must have, at all times, at least one individual approved as a 'duty manager' for each premises operated under the licence.

Fit and proper person test

The proposed regulatory regime requires the Authority to apply a 'fit and proper person test' to licence applicants (in all categories) and those individuals responsible for authorised operations under the licence.

The fit and proper person test consists of three core elements:

- a capability assessment - capability to comply with licence conditions and financial requirements to obtain the fit and proper person status
- areas where the regulator cannot apply discretion - disqualifying conditions (e.g. previous licence revocations and undischarged bankrupts); disqualifying convictions (specified, serious and relevant offences); and convictions that would not, on their own, disqualify the person, and

- areas where the regulator can apply discretion – all other factors or convictions that can be considered to determine suitability.

The Authority would have the ability to use police vetting as a component of the fit and proper person test.

The approach does not automatically prevent an individual with a criminal conviction from holding a licence, or be responsible for authorised activities. Some serious convictions will automatically disqualify a person from participating if the conviction occurred in the ten years preceding the individual’s application. Those on Corrections-managed orders or sentences at the time of their application will also be automatically disqualified from participating. Convictions that would not, on their own, disqualify a person as fit and proper have been identified as:

a) Convictions eligible under the clean slate scheme - the Criminal Records (Clean Slate) Act 2004 b) Convictions for cannabis possession and use (for personal use) – Misuse of Drugs Act 1975, section 7 c) Convictions for possession of utensils – Misuse of Drugs Act 1975, section 13(1)(a)	d) Convictions for cultivation of prohibited plant cannabis only – Misuse of Drugs Act 1975, section 9 e) Convictions for sale and supply and possession to supply, cannabis only, adults only – Misuse of Drugs Act 1975, section 6(1)(c)-(f) f) Convictions committed outside of New Zealand, which would fall under (a) to (e) above.

Inclusion of other serious convictions

The proposed fit and proper person test includes a range of automatically disqualifying convictions. These capture serious offending in categories relevant to a person’s fitness to hold a licence or to exercise rights under that licence, serious violent offending, serious dishonesty offences, gang-related offences, and serious drug offending.

Corrections-managed sentences or orders capture those who are currently being monitored by Corrections, such as those who are on parole, on home detention, or are subject to community-based sentences, extended supervision orders, or public protection orders. People on Corrections-managed orders are not ready to take on additional responsibilities under a tightly-managed regulatory regime.

It is proposed that the following convictions would automatically disqualify a person as being fit and proper to participate:

- convictions under the proposed Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill
- convictions for import/export of cannabis or cannabis products
- convictions for an offence relating to sale and supply of cannabis to a person 19 years or younger
- convictions for dealing in controlled drugs (except cannabis), including possession to supply
- convictions for participation in a criminal group
- convictions relating to money laundering, and

- convictions committed outside of New Zealand, which would fall under the above criteria.

Restrictions on working in the regulated market

The policy proposes a minimum age requirement of 20 years or over in order to work in the retail (including on-licence) and consumption premises parts of the cannabis industry or hold any cannabis licence.

Individuals under the age of 20 years could be employed in other areas of the supply chain if the licence holder meets specific requirements.

Regulating licensed retail and consumption premises

The proposed regulatory regime provides for the establishment of licensed cannabis retailers and consumption premises. These premises will sell cannabis and provide a safe space for the consumption of cannabis. The model establishes a number of requirements as to how these licence holders must conduct their activities, what they are permitted to do and what is prohibited.

Retail and consumption premises requirements and restrictions

The regime would place restrictions on the appearance of cannabis retail and consumption premises, focused on minimising opportunities to entice customers, including young people, prohibiting customers from having direct access to products prior to purchase, and keeping cannabis products from the public view.

Individuals aged under 20 years would be prohibited from entering retail or consumption premises.

Licence holders would have duties and obligations placed on them, consistent with the harm-reduction objectives, specifically to:

- display and provide information on legal provisions and minimising the harms associated with cannabis use
- adhere to restrictions on the display of high-potency products, and
- meet host responsibility requirements, including the management of impaired persons.

The Authority would have the power to make decisions on applications to open, and locations of, retail and consumption outlets, based on the criteria and licensing principles set out in legislation.

In doing so, the Authority would be required to balance the risks that could arise from either an over-abundance, or an under-supply, of cannabis retailers. When making decisions, the Authority would be required to consider the interests of the relevant local authority alongside other affected parties in any applications.

The Authority would have the power to set minimum and maximum trading hour limits for distribution licences. The approach to maximum trading hours is similar to that applied to alcohol sales.

The proposed approach would require the Authority to have regard to the following, when making decisions regarding applications for retail or consumption premises:

- consider not-for-profit applicants that can demonstrate a commitment to delivering social benefit to the community or communities
- apply the national plan produced

- have regard to the contents of any local/territorial licensed premises policy
- apply the principles of any local/territorial licensed premises policy
- take into account the following matters:
 - (i) the days on which and the hours during which the applicant proposes to sell cannabis
 - (ii) the design and layout of any proposed premises
 - (iii) whether the applicant has appropriate systems, staff, and training to comply with the law
 - (iv) any information received from a regulatory agency or other organisation
- take into account any submissions received.

Specific requirements for retail premises

Under the proposed regulatory regime, licensed cannabis retailers would only be permitted to sell cannabis and cannabis-related products. This means they would not be permitted to sell alcohol or tobacco, or non-cannabis food or drinks, consistent with the harm-reduction objectives of the regime.

Retail restrictions regarding point of sale information and advertising and marketing are aligned with the approach to the sale of tobacco in New Zealand. However, the approach to advertising will be adjusted to provide for public education, consistent with the harm-reduction objectives.

Specific requirements for consumption premises

Proposed requirements for the operation of consumption premises include compulsory host responsibility training to be enforced through a mix of education provisions, fines and the potential for licences to be suspended or revoked.

Policy proposals establish the parameters for the operation of licensed cannabis consumption premises that seek to balance the need to ensure that the premises are an attractive and accessible proposition for cannabis users, and a viable commercial proposition for licence holders. These parameters include:

- a requirement that the primary objective of a licensed consumption premises be the safe consumption of cannabis;
- a requirement that licensed consumption premises operators meet minimum requirements for the provision of information on safe consumption of cannabis and requirements to act appropriately to ensure that customers adhere to safe practices;
- minimum and maximum trading hours;
- ability for local authorities to recommend trading hours within legislated maximum and minimum limits;
- restrictions on the appearance of the premises, focused on minimising opportunities to entice customers, including young people;
- empowering the regulator to make decisions about applications according to criteria set out in regulations; and
- a prohibition on the sale and consumption of alcohol and tobacco, and
- a requirement to provide food and water.

These provisions allow for two models of consumption premises to operate:

- BYO cannabis consumption premises - offering commonplace activities and a limited range of food and drink – designed to encourage people to stay and consume cannabis in a safe, controlled environment; and
- combined cannabis retail/consumption premises – offering a more restricted range of food and drink (and the ability to BYO cannabis).

While the primary purpose of a consumption premises is the consumption of cannabis, the availability of food and water helps to ensure that consumers are inclined to remain on site until the immediate effects of cannabis wear off. At the same time, restrictions placed on the sale of food and beverages seek to ensure that consumption premises do not become de facto restaurants.

The proposed restrictions concerning the types of food and drink that may be sold by consumption premises would be tighter for those premises that hold both retail and consumption authorisations.

Consumption premises must comply with the Smokefree Environments Act 1990. Smoking and vaping cannabis in indoor areas of a consumption premises is prohibited.

Banning advertising and restricting marketing activities

The regulatory regime prohibits the retail sale of cannabis at or below the wholesale price or in a promotional fashion (e.g. discounting, sales, special offers, and bulk purchase offers), in line with the restrictive approach taken to advertising.

The regime prohibits all advertising, including promotion and sponsorship of cannabis products and cannabis companies, and direct and indirect incentives that encourage the purchase of cannabis. The restriction on advertising does not extend to a complete ban on branding, to the extent a company is not prohibited from putting their name on a product. This ensures companies are incentivised to produce quality products in order to build brand loyalty and trust.

The regime prohibits the display of cannabis products in or from retail outlets along with the use of cannabis trade marks on non-cannabis products and vice versa.

8 Security, testing and recordkeeping

Recordkeeping

All licence holders would be required to keep records detailing all cannabis purchased, sold, supplied or destroyed at every point of the supply chain. This provides for an auditable account of the cannabis market and reduces the risk of cannabis being diverted from the legal to the illicit market, and to support the intent of the cannabis cultivation cap in controlling the levels of supply.

Records would also be used by the Authority to ensure regulatory compliance, which includes requirements on products and quality control. The Authority may request independent verification of the records. The Authority may also publish data and records to the public.

Security

Each licence holder must ensure the security of their cannabis and cannabis products, including the safety, security and surveillance of any site at which controlled activities are undertaken.

Regulations may be prescribed for security measures that must be met by licence holders, including preventing unauthorised access, systems to detect and manage unauthorised intrusions and ensuring the safety of employees, customers and the community.

Regulations may also be prescribed for containment that must be met by licence holders, including requirements to prevent animals from entering areas where cannabis and cannabis products are present.

Testing

Under the proposed regulatory regime, cannabis and cannabis products may not be sold or otherwise marketed for recreational use unless tested by an authorised analytical testing laboratory.

The independent testing laboratory would be required to comply with quality standards and requirements specified in regulations, including (without limitation) accreditation through a specified accrediting programme (whether national or international).

Cannabis and cannabis products must be tested for their cannabinoid profile levels and consistency, and for contaminants, including pesticide and fumigant residues, heavy metals, toxic elements, microbial limits, and the quantity of certain cannabinoids, including THC, THCA, CBD, and CBDA.

All cannabis and cannabis products would be subject to tracing and may be recalled by the Authority.

9 Classes of cannabis products

The regulatory model identifies classes of cannabis that may be produced and sold by licence holders:

- dried cannabis
- fresh cannabis
- cannabis plant
- cannabis seed
- cannabis extract
- cannabis edible
- cannabis topical – solid, and
- cannabis topical – liquid.

If legislation is introduced, only fresh and dried cannabis, cannabis plants and seeds would be approved by the Authority for production and sale immediately following the introduction of the regime. Over time the Authority could recommend the regulations be amended to provide for additional classes of cannabis to be approved (or not approved) for production and sale.

A phased approach to the approval of classes of cannabis reflects an intent to establish a licensed supply of cannabis as quickly as possible, following any enactment of legislation. A focus on dried cannabis, cannabis plants and seeds is likely to satisfy initial demand, while also supporting home-growing provisions. It will allow the Authority time to better understand the nature of the New Zealand marketplace and to draw on insights from international jurisdictions around cannabis product innovation and consumption risks.

Prohibited products

It is proposed that the following forms of cannabis and cannabis products be explicitly prohibited within the regulatory regime:

- the production and sale of cannabis products containing substances (e.g. alcohol or tobacco) known to be harmful or that have unknown interactions with cannabis
- the production and sale of cannabis products that use higher risk modes of consumption (e.g. injectables, suppositories and sterile products for the eyes, ears or nose)
- cannabis-infused beverages
- cannabis products that contain anything that enhances the psychoactive or addictive effects of cannabis
- the production and sale of dried cannabis and fresh cannabis products containing roots and stems of the plant (as this can distort the THC content of the package)
- the production and sale of cannabis products intended for consumption by animals
- the production and sale of cannabis products that are deemed 'novel' and worsen cannabis harms in the community, and
- any cannabis product of a cannabis class that is not approved for sale.

The regime allows for further cannabis and cannabis product restrictions to be made in regulations.

Prohibition on products that are appealing to children and young people

The proposed regulatory regime would place a specific prohibition on the sale of cannabis products that are deemed by the Authority to be appealing to children and/or young people, with the Authority making determinations on a case-by-case basis. This discretion provides the Authority with the flexibility to respond to new product developments.

Specific controls on cannabis edibles

The regime provides for a definition of 'cannabis edible':

Cannabis that is intended to be consumed in the same manner as a food, but does not include dried cannabis, fresh cannabis, cannabis plants or cannabis seeds. It must be solid at room temperature.

This definition ensures that cannabis edibles are fully regulated under the cannabis regulatory regime, achieving regulatory separation from the conventional food safety system under the Food Act 2014 and preserving the integrity of New Zealand's conventional food safety system (including Trans-Tasman arrangements).

Cannabis-infused beverages would be excluded on the basis that they would likely contribute to significant product diversification (i.e. fail the 'novelty' test, referred to below in the approvals process)

Restrictions on range of edibles available

All licensed cannabis edibles permitted under the cannabis regulatory regime would be subject to existing safety and suitability requirements for food that are applied by regulations to cannabis edibles. This will help ensure that cannabis edibles are safe and suitable for human consumption.

Other proposed restrictions on cannabis edibles include:

- restricting permitted cannabis edibles to baked products that do not require refrigeration or heating
- prohibiting the addition of nutritive substances or novel foods
- prohibiting the manufacture of cannabis edibles and food in the same premises, and
- prohibiting the sale or use of cannabis and cannabis products for animal consumption.

10 Cannabis product approvals

Product approval powers

A broad product control framework has been developed for the regime, including:

- a. the production and sale of certain classes of cannabis to be approved or prohibited through regulation
- b. all facets of cannabis products, including their content, method of consumption, form, shape and appearance to be regulated, and
- c. provisions for the Authority to stop the sale, or recall of cannabis products found to be harmful and request additional information about products from the producer.

A cannabis products approval process has been developed, as follows:

- a) all classes of cannabis will be deemed by the Authority as presenting either:
 - i. an 'elevated risk' - classes of cannabis that present additional risks to create harm or present additional regulatory challenges to the Authority; or
 - ii. a 'standard risk' – classes of cannabis that present no additional risks of cannabis-related harm.

Edible cannabis has been classified as an elevated risk product. The Authority will make decisions about the risk level of other classes following the referendum.

- b) all products will be required to meet the standards as specified in regulations
- c) products in a 'standard risk' class of cannabis will be subject to a product notification scheme prior to sale and verified for compliance with the regime
- d) products in an 'elevated risk' class of cannabis (e.g. edibles) will be subject to pre-market approval from the Authority, before they enter the marketplace
- e) all proposed products will be subject to a 'novel cannabis product' test to prohibit the sale of products that have never been used in New Zealand before, unless assessed as helping to reduce overall cannabis-related harm, and
- f) the Authority will have broad powers to stop the sale of, or recall, products found to be harmful and request additional information about products from the cannabis licence holder.

Appendix A provides a diagram illustrating the approval process.

False, misleading or therapeutic claims prohibited

The regulatory regime would prohibit false, misleading or therapeutic claims about cannabis being made in any form by/within retail and consumption premises.

Regulating the sale of cannabis accessories

The regulatory regime would restrict the sale of cannabis accessories to licensed cannabis retailers only, the exception being pharmacies selling accessories used for medicinal cannabis.

Restricting sales of cannabis accessories to cannabis retailers will help to limit the public visibility of, and exposure to, cannabis. Existing stores that currently sell 'like' accessories could continue to do so, as long as the items are not represented in any way as being capable of being used for cannabis.

11 Potency

Controls on potency for all licensed products

The proposed approach makes provision for maximum potency limits to be set in regulations for each class of cannabis.

The forms of controls on potency would be determined according to cannabis classes:

- fresh and dried cannabis – THC strength by percentage; and
- all other cannabis classes and sub-classes (e.g. cannabis edibles and extracts) – THC content by weight.

Adopting these simple metrics will assist consumers to make informed decisions about consumption.

Potency limits

Policy proposals include indicative THC limits for each class of cannabis. Should the legislation be introduced, the Authority would review these potency limits against the criteria set out below, and consult with the Cannabis Advisory Committee before making a recommendation to the responsible Minister.

The indicative potency limits are:

- fresh and dried cannabis – maximum potency limit of 15% THC
- edibles – maximum potency level of 5mg of THC per package
- cannabis extract – maximum potency limit of 10mg of THC per unit and 1000mg per package
- cannabis topical – maximum potency limit of 1000mg per package.

Criteria to be considered

The Authority must consider the following criteria when recommending potency limits:

- reducing problematic use, especially for Māori
- preventing over-consumption
- providing choice, and

- creating potency limits with reference to potency levels found in cannabis from the illicit market.

Prescribing criteria in legislation provides for a more transparent process for setting and reviewing potency limits. Policy proposals also require the Authority to consult with the Cannabis Advisory Committee, ensuring consideration of a wide range of expertise is applied, and additional transparency in the process.

12 Product labelling and packaging

The proposed regime includes a set of requirements for packaging for all cannabis products. All cannabis products, other than cannabis plants and seeds, must meet requirements of a child-resistant package under domestic legislation.

Provision is made for regulations to be made regarding packaging. These may include requirements that the package must:

- be opaque or translucent
- prevent contamination of the cannabis
- in the case of dried cannabis, or a cannabis accessory that contains dried cannabis, keep the cannabis dry
- have a security feature that provides reasonable assurance to consumers that it has not been opened prior to receipt
- meet the requirements of a child-resistant package under domestic legislation, and
- not contain more than 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent).

Cannabis seeds must be packaged in an immediate container that keeps the seeds dry and not contain more than 14 seeds.

Further proposals require that all cannabis products be labelled and the information the label must contain includes:

- name of a prescribed holder of a licence
- the class of cannabis to which the cannabis that is in the immediate container belongs
- in respect of the product, any additional prescribed information
- warnings as required by this Act, including—
 - (i) the health warnings and
 - (ii) any further warnings that may be prescribed
- a statement declaring that the cannabis contained in the product represents a certain amount of the possession limit (such as a percentage), in a prescribed manner and form
- the prescribed standardised cannabis symbol, and
- name of the licensed producer.

Labelling to include potency information

The regulatory regime includes a requirement for all licensed products to clearly label:

- product potency and cannabinoid content; and
- product equivalencies expressed in terms of the daily purchase limit (14 grams of dried cannabis).

This will assist cannabis consumers to make informed choices and contribute to an understanding of potency and purchase limits.

13 Duties, levies and fees

Utilising excise, levies and price controls to cover costs and reduce harm

Policy proposals provide for an excise tax and a levy to be applied at the point of processing when cannabis is packaged and labelled for end-sale. All cannabis must be packaged and labelled before it is sold or supplied for retail sale.

The use of excise and a levy as a means of managing price is preferable to setting minimum or maximum prices. This is because the revenue goes to the Crown and can be redistributed to areas of need, including harm-reduction activities.

The final decision-making authority for setting excise, levy and licensing fee rates will sit with the responsible Minister with agreement from the Minister of Finance.

Excise

It is proposed that excise be calculated based on the weight of cannabis and the weight of potency and tailored for different classes of cannabis:

- the weight of cannabis means the total weight of cannabis in grams in a class of cannabis
- the weight of potency means the total weight of THC in milligrams in a class of cannabis (milligram of THC).

The excise is intended to ensure that the price of cannabis remains at a level consistent with the purpose of regulatory regime.

A progressive excise tax, applied according to potency levels (the higher the THC, the higher the tax), is intended to encourage the use of lower potency products. A similar progressive tax is applied to alcohol in New Zealand. Excise tax revenue will go to Government baselines.

Harm-reduction levy

It is proposed that a levy is used to directly fund services that will assist in reducing the harm caused by cannabis use.

A levy provides a means to directly fund services (such as through healthcare, education, and research) that will assist in reducing cannabis-related harms. A levy is a common means of ring-fencing money for harm-reduction activities, and is also applied to alcohol and gambling.

Cost recovery through fees

The proposed approach includes licensing fees to be used to recover the cost of administering and monitoring the licensing regime in line with best practice cost recovery principles. This includes both the regulatory and administrative costs associated with issuing licences and ongoing monitoring of licensees.

14 Enforcement of licensed activities

Responding to breaches of licensed cannabis regime

Appendix B lists the proposed legislative penalties that would be applied in response to non-compliant conduct in the licensed cannabis regime. Two custodial offences are proposed – selling cannabis in excess of quota and selling cannabis to an unlicensed entity. These offences have been assessed as causing significant harm and seriously undermining the licensed regime.

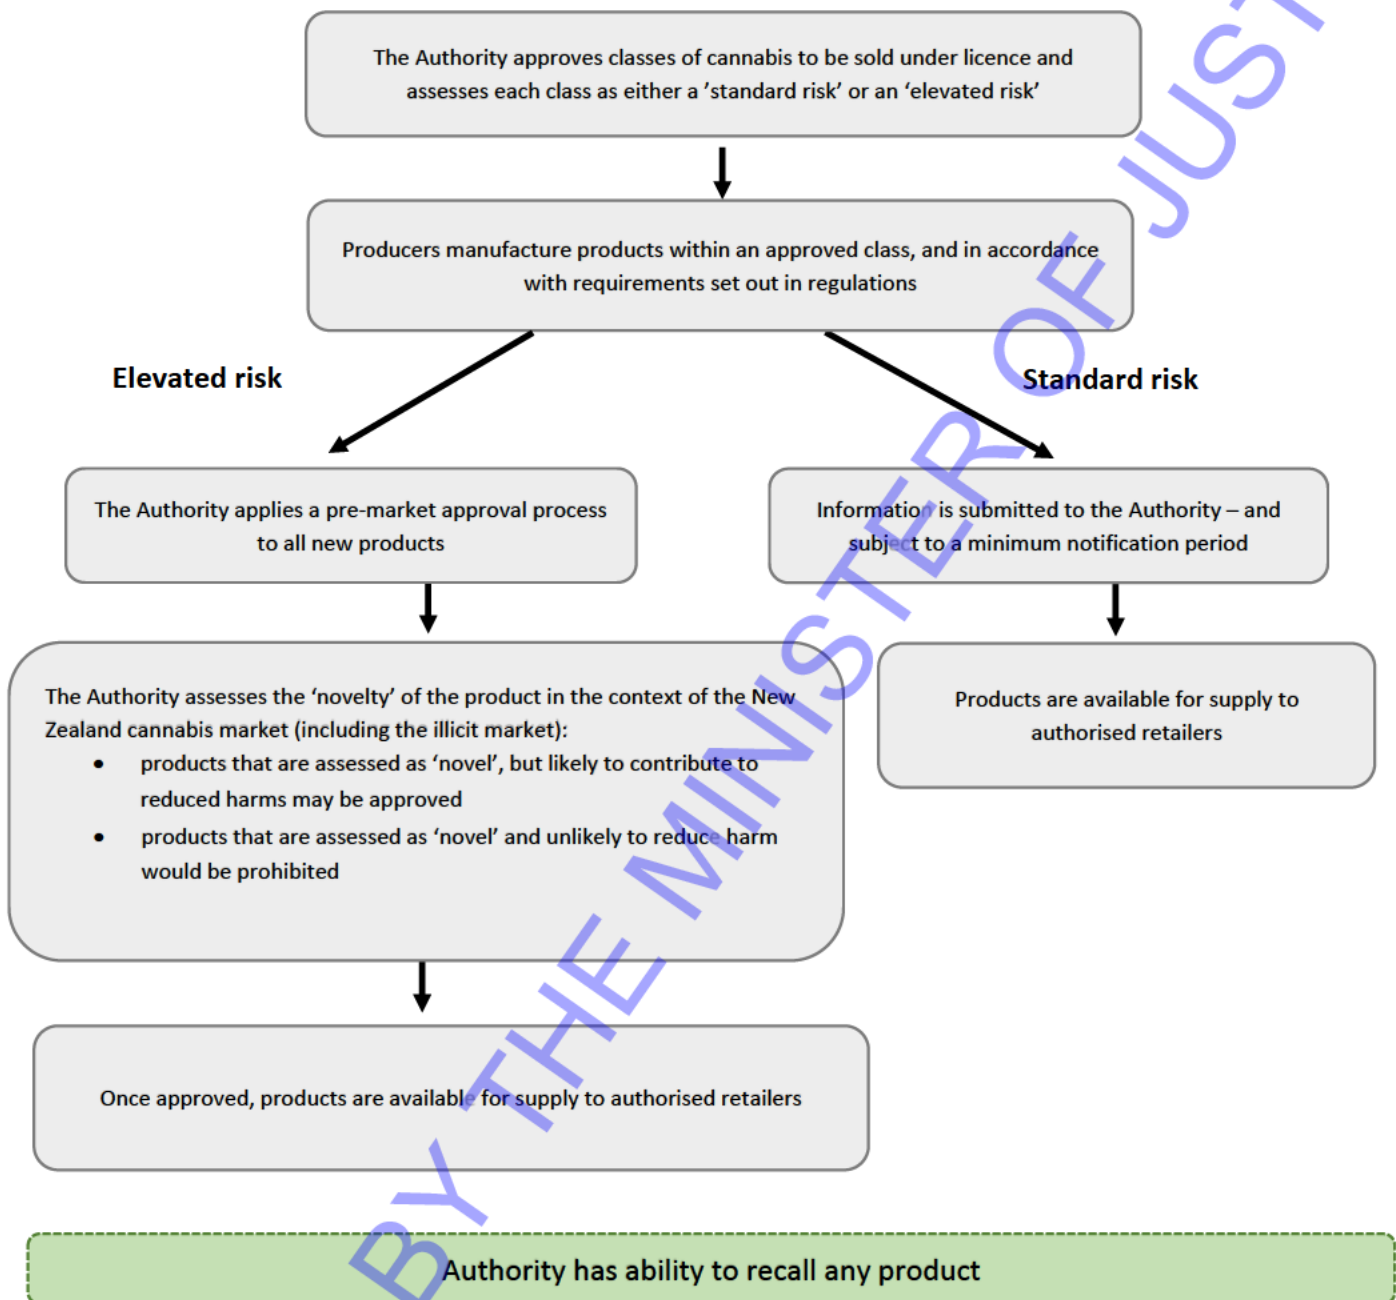

Cross-government harm-reduction approach

The proposed regulatory regime includes a function confirming the Authority's mandate to facilitate a cross-government approach to addressing non-compliance that is health-based and focused on harm reduction.

This approach enables a range of responses to be adopted in response to non-compliance, including the provision of assistance to comply with the regime, use of non-legislative tools (e.g. suspension of licence) and court-imposed sanctions for breaches.

Non-legislative options will be developed by the Authority and may include education approaches, warnings, temporary or permanent licence suspensions and financial penalties.

Approval of new cannabis products

The following products will be prohibited outright:

- × cannabis-infused beverages
- × products containing substances designed to increase the psychoactive or addictive effects of cannabis
- × packaged dried and fresh cannabis containing plant roots or stems
- × products containing substances known to be harmful or to have harmful interactions with cannabis
- × products designed for higher risk modes of consumption (e.g. injectables and suppositories)

Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill

Exposure Draft for Referendum

Explanatory note

General policy statement

This exposure draft of the proposed Cannabis Legalisation and Control Bill (the Bill) provides a regulatory framework to legalise and control the production, possession and use of cannabis in New Zealand for people 20 years and over.

The overarching objective of the regulatory regime is to reduce the harms associated with cannabis use experienced by individuals, families, whānau, and communities in New Zealand.

The harm-reduction objective is reflected in measures to—

- raise public awareness of the risks associated with cannabis consumption and improve access to health and other relevant support services; and
- restrict young people’s access to cannabis and limit public visibility to cannabis; and
- provide access to a legal and quality-controlled supply of cannabis for adults (aged 20 years and over) who choose to consume cannabis; and
- place controls on the potency and content of licensed cannabis and regulate the whole supply chain to deter the illegal supply of cannabis; and
- provide for the limited home-growing of cannabis for personal use; and
- encourage compliance with the legislation and ensure that responses to breaches are proportionate and incorporate a focus on reducing overall harms.

The purchase, possession, and consumption of cannabis will remain illegal for people aged 19 years and under.

Definition of cannabis

The Bill establishes a definition of cannabis that distinguishes the proposed regime from the medicinal cannabis and hemp schemes.

Cannabis Regulatory Authority

The Bill creates a new regulatory body, the Cannabis Regulatory Authority (the Authority), with responsibility for implementation of the regime in a way that promotes the well-being of New Zealanders, reduces the multiple harms associated with cannabis use, and reduces the overall use of cannabis over time.

The Authority's functions include—

- establishing a cap to limit the amount of cannabis available for sale in the licensed market; and
- licensing and authorising controlled activities at each stage of the cannabis supply chain; and
- setting potency limits through controls on the amount of THC (tetrahydrocannabinol – the main psychoactive compound in cannabis) permitted in cannabis products; and
- administering and collecting excise taxes, levies, and fees; and
- promoting responsible cannabis consumption and use through raising public awareness of harms, developing good practice guidelines, and monitoring and enforcing compliance with regulatory requirements.

The Authority will produce a national plan every five years, setting out how it intends to give effect to the main objective and purposes of the legislation, including a public health, drug education, and treatment service strategy designed to support the development and delivery of appropriate services and programmes.

The Authority will be supported by a Cannabis Advisory Committee, comprising individuals with knowledge in a range of relevant areas including from the health, justice, and social sectors and from young people, iwi, and Māori. The Committee will provide an independent stream of advice to the Authority on key elements of the regime.

What does the regime permit individuals to do?

The Bill permits the possession and consumption of cannabis within a tightly-controlled framework. A person aged 20 years or over may—

- buy up to 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent) per day from a licensed outlet; and
- enter licensed premises where cannabis is sold or consumed; and
- consume cannabis on private property or at a licensed premise; and
- grow up to two plants, with a maximum of four plants per household; and
- share up to 14 grams of dried cannabis (or its equivalent) with another person aged 20 or over.

Establishing a licensed supply of cannabis

The Bill provides for the development of a commercial supply of cannabis, produced and supplied under licence. All aspects of the cannabis supply chain are regulated, from seeds and growing stock through to retail sale.

All licence applicants must be aged 20 years or older and will be required to meet a core set of requirements, including a fit and proper person test and police vetting. The fit and proper test has three elements:

- a capability assessment – assessing ability to comply with conditions and financial requirements; and
- disqualifying conditions – such as serious previous convictions, previous license removal, and undischarged bankrupts; and
- non-disqualifying convictions – less serious convictions that will not, on their own, disqualify a person from holding a licence.

Licensed cannabis retailers and consumption premises

The Bill provides for the establishment of licensed cannabis retail outlets. These outlets will only be permitted to sell cannabis and cannabis-related products.

The Bill also permits the establishment of cannabis consumption premises, intended to provide a safe place for people to consume cannabis. Consumption premises may operate on a BYO cannabis basis or as a combined cannabis retail/consumption premise, and will be permitted to sell a limited range of food and drink.

Classes of cannabis products and potency

The regulatory model identifies classes of cannabis that may be produced and sold by licence holders (dried cannabis, fresh cannabis, cannabis plants, cannabis seeds, cannabis extracts, cannabis edibles, and cannabis topicals (solid and liquid)). Maximum potency limits are established for classes of cannabis and will be subject to review by the Authority and approval by the responsible Minister.

Other controls on the licensed production and sale of cannabis

The Bill places a range of controls on the licensed production and sale of cannabis, including—

- restrictions on marketing, and a ban on advertising cannabis; and
- strict requirements for the packaging and labelling of products; and
- a prohibition on online sales; and
- tight cannabis product controls, including prohibitions on some forms of products; and
- security, testing, and recordkeeping requirements for all licence holders.

Use of excise, levies and fees

An excise tax and levy will be applied when cannabis is packaged and labelled for retail. This will assist to manage the price of retail cannabis.

The levy will be used to directly fund services that will assist in reducing the harm caused by cannabis use (as identified in the harm reduction strategy).

Enforcement provisions

The Bill establishes a framework of offences and penalties to support provisions and restrictions in the licensed and unlicensed spheres, incorporating the use of fees, court-imposed fines and, in the most serious cases, terms of imprisonment.

Schedule 9

Provisions relating to imposition and payment of cannabis levies

s 3(18)(i)

1 Interpretation

- (1) In this schedule, unless the context otherwise requires,— aggregate expenditure figure, in relation to any financial year, means the aggregate expenditure figure assessed in respect of that year by the Minister under clause 2(1)

aggregate levy figure, in relation to any financial year, means the aggregate levy figure determined in respect of that year by the Minister under clause 2(2)

class of cannabis means a class of cannabis as identified in the table in Schedule 8

class of cannabis product means a class of cannabis products as identified in the table in Schedule 8

preceding statistical year means the latest complete period of 12 consecutive months in respect of which, at any material time, there is available to the Minister information about the total quantity (weight of cannabis and weight of potency) of each class of cannabis or each class of cannabis products produced in New Zealand during that period.

- (2) For the purposes of clause 2, where any cannabis or cannabis product produced in New Zealand is sold to a holder of a cannabis production licence with a process activity for processing (including blending with other cannabis or cannabis product, packaging, and labelling), the cannabis or cannabis product so sold is deemed to be produced by the person who processes it (including packaging and labelling) and not by its original maker.
- (3) For the purposes of clause 2(2), the total quantity (weight of cannabis and weight of potency) of cannabis processed in New Zealand during any statistical year is deemed to be the same as the total volume of cannabis sold by holders of cannabis production licences with a processing activity during that year.
- (4) For the purposes of clauses 4 and 5, the total quantity (weight of cannabis and weight of potency) of cannabis sold in New Zealand during any financial year is deemed to be the same as the total volume of cannabis sold in New Zealand during the preceding statistical year.

2 Minister to determine amounts of levy for each class

- (1) For each financial year, the Minister, acting with the concurrence of the Minister of Finance, must assess the aggregate expenditure figure for that year that, in the Minister's opinion, would be reasonable for the Authority to expend during that year—

- (a) in addressing cannabis-related harm; and
 - (b) in meeting its operating costs that are attributable to cannabis-related activities.
- (2) Having assessed the aggregate expenditure figure for any financial year under subclause (1), the Minister must determine the aggregate levy figure for that year, being an amount equal to the aggregate expenditure figure less the amount that, in the Minister's opinion, is likely to be received by the Authority during the financial year by way of interest on money invested by the Authority or from third party or other revenue.
- (3) Nothing in this clause obliges the Authority to expend in any financial year the whole of its income received in that year, and the Authority may accumulate any part of its income in any financial year and expend it as it sees fit for any of its purposes in any subsequent financial year.
- (4) Despite subclause (2), if the Authority carries forward any such amount to a subsequent financial year, the Minister may, in determining the aggregate levy figure for that year, take into account the whole or any part of that amount.

3 Rate of levy fixed by Order in Council

- (1) The Governor-General may, by Order in Council, fix for the next financial year, by reference to each class of cannabis, the amount of levy payable under clause 4.
- (2) The amount of levy for each class of cannabis must be as determined by the Minister in accordance with clause 2(2).
- (3) If a rate for a class of cannabis is described in the table in Schedule 8 as a variable rate, the Order in Council must identify the rate determined by the Minister under clause 2(3) and used for the purpose of clause 2(2).

4 Levies payable by cannabis license holders

- (1) In every financial year, a levy of the amount set by Order in Council made under clause 3 is payable by every cannabis license holder who—
- (a) enters for home consumption (as that expression is used in the Customs and Excise Act 2018) any imported cannabis or cannabis products; or
 - (b) produces in New Zealand any cannabis or cannabis products; or
 - (c) sells any cannabis or cannabis products produced by that person in New Zealand.
- (2) No levy is payable under this Act in respect of any cannabis or cannabis product that is not subject to or is exempt from Customs duty under the Customs and Excise Act 2018.
- (3) If any person may be allowed, under the Customs and Excise Act 2018, any drawback in respect of any cannabis or cannabis product, that person may also be allowed a refund of any levy paid by that person under this Act in respect of the cannabis or cannabis product.

- (4) In this section, Customs duty has the meaning given to the term duty by section 5(1) of the Customs and Excise Act 2018.

5 Payment and collection of levies in respect of cannabis and cannabis products

- (1) All levies payable under this Act in respect of cannabis and cannabis products are payable to the Customs in addition to any duty payable to the Customs in cannabis and cannabis products under the Customs and Excise Act 2018.
- (2) The levies are payable to the Customs at the same time as the excise duty or excise-equivalent duty is payable under the Customs and Excise Act 2018 in respect of the cannabis or cannabis products concerned.

6 Powers of the Customs

The powers and authorities of the Customs under the Customs and Excise Act 2018, with any necessary modifications, apply in the same manner to the collection of a levy under this Act as they apply to the collection of duty under that Act.

7 All levies collected to be paid to Authority

- (1) The Customs must pay to Authority all levies received under this Act by the Customs.
- (2) This clause is subject to clause 8.

8 Crown may be reimbursed for collection of levies

- (1) For the purpose of reimbursing the Crown for any expenses incurred by the Customs in collecting any levies under this Act, the Customs may retain any percentage of every levy collected by it that may be determined by the Minister of Finance after consultation with the Authority.
- (2) The amount of any levy retained under subclause (1) must not exceed 5% of the amount of the levies collected by the Customs.
- (3) The Crown is entitled in every financial year to recover from the Authority out of the fund any sum in respect of the costs incurred by the Ministry of Justice in administering this Act that may be determined by the Minister of Finance after consultation with the Authority.
